Indicted On Two Counts.

Former Senator Charles J. Bronston was indicted on two counts Tuesday as a result of the sensational shooting affair he had at Lexington Saturday, with Colonel W. R. Milward. The indictment charges willfully and maliciously shooting and carrying unlawfully concealed weapons. Mr. Bronston surrendered, and was released on $500 bond in each case. His trial will be set for October 8.

Lexington Ex-Mayor Makes More Charges.

Former Mayor H. T. Duncan Tuesday went before the Fayette county grand jury and presented to them an open letter charging the county officials of Fayette with the misuse of the sinking fund. Duncan alleges that the Fayette Fiscal Court has violated the law in the failure to publish the list of claims ordered paid since December 31, 1905, and demands an investigation and indictment. He suggests that there must be something wrong with the proceedings of the Fiscal Court when the list of claims allowed is not published. The bonded indebtedness of that county is $405,000, of which Duncan alleges $280,000 is illegal.

Competitors In Earnest.

Appropos of Attorney General Jackson, of New York, asking a Justice of the Supreme Court of that State to appoint a referee to secure evidence that the Western Union Telegraph Company and Postal Telegraph and Cable Company have formed a combination in restraint of competition, Clarence Mackay, of the Postal, issued a statement in which he said the two companies were in earnest, the competition sometimes being fierce and bitter.

An Old Banner.

The historic national banner of Stars and Stripes which inspired Francis Scott Key to compose "The Star-Spangled Banner," and which floated over Fort McHenry, Chesapeake Bay, during its bombardment by the British on the night of September 13, 1814, has been placed on exhibition at Smithsonian Institute in Washington. The flag is the property of Eben Appleton, of New York, who has loaned it to the Government.

Bourbon Fair To Be Bigger And Better Than Ever.

The Bourbon Fair directors have held a meeting and set in motion for our fair to be held in September 1907. The Building Committee will proceed to erect nearly one hundred new stalls for the accommodation of stock and place the grounds in condition by mowing the grass and whitewashing the grandstand, stables, stalls and fencing. The catalogue will soon be in the hands of the printer and everybody connected with the Association is getting a move on them. With the increase of $900 in cash premiums offered, the old Bourbon Fair promises to be bigger and better than ever before, and will by far exceed the fine exhibition of stock last year. A day will be set apart as Fayette county day, Clark county, Scott county, Nicholas and Harrison county and Society of Equity day.

Next Tuesday is to be Kentucky Day at the Jamestown Exposition.

Hill-Grinnan.

At Pendleton, Oregon, June 30, Miss Vera Hill, of Grand Rapids, Mich. and Mr. Wood Grinnan, formerly of Paris, were united in marriage. Information of the happy event was received by Mr. L. Grinnan, father of the bride room, in a letter Tuesday from his son, who is a telegraph operator at Starbuck, Wash. Miss Hill is a Michigan beauty and was on a visit to relatives at Pendleton, where she made the acquaintance of Mr. Grinnan, the meeting being one of love at first sight. Her father is a wealthy citizen of Grand Rapids. Mr. and Mrs. Grinnan will reside at Starbuck, Wash.

An Ex-Bourbon Gets A Fall.

The Maysville Ledger says of an ex-Bourbon: "Last evening Mr. J. W. Boulden of the First National Bank, in descending a stairway at his home in West Fourth street, missed his footing and fell down the entire flight of steps. He was badly bruised about the head and body, and that he escaped without being seriously injured is a miracle."

Board Of Education.

The Board of Education met Monday night in monthly session at the office of Superintendent George W. Chapman, at the court house, with President R. P. Dow presiding.

The resignation of E. H. Owings as Secretary of the Board was received, and Dr. F. L. Lapsley, a member of the board was elected to fill the vacancy.

The resignation of Janitor W. O. Fuller was accepted and the election of his successor was deferred to a future meeting.

William Myall, cashier of the Citizen's Bank, was re-elected as Treasurer.

A report from the Building Committee was read showing the progress of the work on the new school building.

The report showed that the work of excavating for the foundation would be completed this week and the latter would be started Monday and probably finished by September, when the real work of construction would commence.

With one exception the successful bidders had filed their contracts properly signed and given bond for the performance of the work.

The Committee on Grounds was in receipt of a communication from the City Council proffering an additional space of fifty feet, frontage on Seventh street extending to a diagonal intersection with the rear of the grounds which will give an increased play ground for female pupils of the school.

Prisoners Vaccinated.

The prisoners convicted at the June term of the Bourbon Circuit Court, after having been successfully vaccinated, were Tuesday taken to the State penitentiary at Frankfort, by Deputy Sheriff A. S. Thompson, assisted by Mason Talbott and Sam B. Ewalt, who were sworn in as deputy sheriffs. The prisoners and the term of years each go for are as follows:

Julian Throckmorton, eight years; Henry Johnson, two years; Albert Clay, five years; Homer Wilson, fifteen years; and Nat Gay for life. All are negroes excepting Throckmorton and all go to the pen convicted of murder, except the negro Clay, who was sent up for a vicious assault upon officer James Burke, who had arrested Clay on a warrant charging assault and battery.

The Disgrace of Dying Young.

[From Courier-Journal.]

Dr. Wiley's dictum that it is a disgrace for any man to die except from old age is going to worry a great many of us who are trying to lead upright lives and win the respect of our neighbors. The doctor shows that however honorable and decent a life one may spend, his last breath can put upon him a stigma which is eternal. The fact that he did not run down, like a clock, but just laid him down and died from disease, is a scandal which can never be lived down. And yet to worry over the dictum to invite the very disgrace which Dr. Wiley holds before us, for is not worry accounted a hastener of death?

Dr. Wiley bases his strictures apparently upon the theory that every disease has a direct cause, and that cause is escapable. If you have tuberculosis, it is because you have foolishly taken some germs into your system which you should have had nothing to do with. If you have cirrhosis of the liver, inflammation of the duodenum or deuteronomy of the hexagonal hypochondria, it is your fault. If you stand in the path of a fast flying motor car and are precipitated into another world, your fault. If death overtakes you in any form except from old age, you are immoral, criminal, reprehensible, ruined. Think of the millions and millions of persons in the history of the world who must be condemned because they had the indiscretion to die untimely deaths! Still, it may be said in extenuation that they died thinking whom the gods loved die young.

Of course, most of us are desirous of escaping this terrible disgrace. But how? When one set of scientists says we should smoke tobacco if we would live long, and another says we shouldn't, what are we to do? When one intellectual wing decrees that we should consume much meat and another avers that we should eat only vegetables, what are laymen to do? And there are advocates of cold baths and anti-cold-bathites; champions of coffee and enemies; there are those who say that one should drink a great deal of water and others who say no; who affirm that you must never drink water with a meal and others who dispute this indignantly. Some there are who tell you to eat apples and oatmeal, and still others who shriek loud shrieks of opposition to these. What must we do? What can we do?

If Dr. Wiley will get some of the learned members of his profession to agree on a precise course of living that will insure the continuation of life until beset old age he will find millions of persons willing and glad to adopt it—not because they object to dying, for death would be just the merest trifle; but because they do not wish to be disgraced.

Taft Must Speak.

The Sioux Falls, S. D., Press, a Republican paper of the Roosevelt brand, appears not to be satisfied with Mr. Roosevelt's O. K. on the Taft boom. The Press says: "In view of the fact that Mr. Taft is Mr. Roosevelt's candidate for President in 1908, and in view of the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is making an effort to secure Taft's nomination, on the ground that he will carry out his Roosevelt's policies, it would be of great interest to the public to know what Mr. Taft's views are on those questions which have made Mr. Roosevelt popular. * * * On these questions Mr. Taft has been silent and there is a belief in some quarters that he is satisfactory to trusts and combinations, to railroads, and to the very rich, and that he rarely stands for anything that the president is popularly supposed to stand for."

Why should there be any doubt concerning a public man's position upon pressing questions of the day? When a man is urged for the presidency on the theory that he is an anti-monopolist, why should he hesitate to say something by way of reassuring the people whose support he seeks? It is evident that Mr. Taft will find it difficult in the year of 1908 to pose as the champion of anti-monopoly while leaving his followers in doubt as to his own views concerning questions pertaining to monopoly.

Mr. Rockefeller has paid a fine for "secreting" with his automobile. Up to date he has not paid Texas that fine for "burning them up."

The Voter Responsible.

There is much being said these days about the privileges that trusts powers for extorting exorbitant amounts of money from the people. In view of the fact that only trust stockholders or trust representatives are elected to official positions at the head of National government, it is not surprising if they should by some modest turn of circumstances legislate a few laws to their own advantage. In fact, it would be something of a surprise if they did not do so. If the people are dissatisfied with prevailing conditions, they have the only power on earth to change them. The ballot is the instrument through which the voter expresses his wishes, and he alone is responsible for the manner in which he chooses that instrument.

Coghlan of Kentucky.

[From Our Country for July.]

There has been restored to civil life from the active lists of the Navy one of those sons of Kentucky who did honor to her name. Rear Admiral Joseph B. Coghlan, having reached the age limit has been put upon the "old and useless list," which in his case is just a funny description.

Coghlan is one of that numerous body of men who have represented Kentucky always with distinction in the Navy ever since George Bancroft established the Navy Academy. There have been a lot of them, great Admirals and fine Captains; Admirals like Robert L. Pythian, Chapman Todd, Crittenden, Watson, George Summer, Wm. P. McCann, Silas Wright Terry, William Clinton Wise, Captains Robert Mallory Berry, Lucien Young, with many others, and against their names in almost every case on the Navy Register stands the record of "distinguished service."

Few of them however, had Coghlan's chance, or if they did, had the happy faculty of improving it so well. Among the men of the Navy Coghlan was one of the most popular officers in the service. The slowness of promotion kept him a deck officer for nearly thirty eight years. It was only necessary for him to sing out "Lads get hold of that weather brace," to electrify a crew. He never swore, he always drewled his commands, but there was a certain vigor in his bearing that was contagious. Then he was a humorist and saw the funny things first, and however he was humane and sympathetic, a kind and considerate officer and a gentleman. And he was from Kentucky.

Far-Reaching Corporate Influence.

The investigations which have been going on during the last few years have brought to light many iniquities. The source of corruption funds has been exposed and the inner working of high finance revealed.

Some day the investigation will be carried into the courts and we shall learn whether the judges who preside at the trial of corruption have any pecuniary interest in the cases which come before them—not necessarily in the particular case, but in the result which follows important decisions. It is now more than ten years since Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, in a speech in the United States Senate, called attention to the fact that when a suit was brought in New York for the purpose of dissolving the joint traffic association, it was found that only one judge out of the eight judges in that circuit was qualified to try the case because of the others holding stocks or bonds of some of the railroads that were defendants. The far-reaching influence of the great corporations is not fully recognized. It is not easy for a judge to be absolutely impartial when his decision may effect the value of his own property. One of the objections to allowing watered stock to be issued is that when issued, it gets into the hands of people who regard themselves as innocent purchasers—even though they may have informed themselves by investigation—and such persons regard any attack upon the corporation as an attack upon their vested rights.

With a $24,000,000 dividend on a $12,000,000 capital the Adams Express company does not seem to be on the eve of bankruptcy.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ## CONSUMPTION'S WARNING

Inside facts soon become evident in outside symptoms.—DR. G. G. GREEN.

The aid of scientific inventions is not needed to determine whether your lungs are affected. The first symptoms can be readily noted by anyone of average intelligence.

There is no disease known that gives so many plain warnings of its approach as consumption, and no serious disease that can be so quickly reached and checked, if the medicine used is Dr. Boschee's German Syrup, which is made to cure consumption.

It is in the early stages that German Syrup should be taken, when warnings are given in the cough that won't quit, the congestion of the bronchial tubes and the gradual weakening of the lungs, accompanied by frequent expectoration.

But no matter how deep-seated your cough, even if dread consumption has already attacked your lungs, German Syrup will surely effect a cure—as it has done before in thousands of apparently hopeless cases of lung trouble.

In the Season of Growth

By PETER M'ARTHUR

Copyright, 1905, by Peter McArthur

THEY had been introduced only a few minutes before and were wandering through the garden trying to make conversation. The beautiful weather had received full and careful attention, the condition of the lilac and rose bushes had been discussed, and then came silence. Both were beginning to feel awkward when Jack's eye lighted on a bulb lying partly hidden by a border. True to the instincts of a football player, he gave it a deft kick that sent it spinning along the gravel walk.

"The gardener must have dropped it when he was planting the crocuses," said Betty, glad to hear her own voice again.

"Perhaps he just laid it aside there because he didn't want a hyacinth among them," Jack replied, picking up the bulb, and, then, being a true Omarian, he could not resist quoting:

"I sometimes think that never blows so red
The rose as where some buried Caesar
bled;
That every hyacinth the garden wears Dropped in her lap from some once lovely head."

"Well," said Betty, with a mischievous smile, "Donald's head may have been lovely once, but it must have been before he took to gardening. At present he is very bald, and the little fringe of hair he has left is decidedly red. His are hardly the 'hyacinthine locks' Milton had in mind, and I doubt if Emerson would have recognized him as 'The hyacinthine boy for whom Morn well might break and April bloom.'"

"You are fond of poetry, I see," said Jack when they had stopped laughing at her sally.

"Very," said Betty, "but you started us on the wrong tack if we are to do justice to that neglected little bulb. You should have recited Holmes' lines: 'The spendthrift crocus, bursting through the mold, Naked and shivering with his cup of gold.'"

"But I don't see how that applies to this hyacinth."

"Pardon me—to that crocus."

"But I took a high stand in botany when I graduated. It was one of the optional studies on my course, and I plugged four volumes in two weeks."

"Primroses by the river's brim
Dicotyledons were to him,
And they were nothing more,"

she quoted smilingly from a clever parody.

"That may be," he replied, "but though my knowledge of botany is entirely bookish I'll leave it to the practical and red haired Donald to prove that I am right. I'll wager a pair of gloves to a tie that this is a hyacinth. What do you say?"

"Simply that I wear five and a half."

"Well, where can we find Donald?"

"This being his day off I can hardly say. But I'll tell you what will be better fun. Let us plant the bulb and see which it turns out to be?"

"That is a bargain. But will it be sure to get the attention necessary to make it grow?"

"I'll plant it and care for it myself."

"But I claim the right of superintending the work and examining the plant from time to time to make sure that my interest is being guarded."

"All right. If you will go up to the veranda and get the trowel that is lying by the step I will find an empty spot in one of the beds in which to plant my crocus."

SHE PULLED UP HER SLEEVES TO HER ELBOWS.

When Jack had performed his errand he found Betty kneeling on the border of one of the beds waiting for him. He gallantly offered to do the planting, but she scorned his assistance.

"Do you think," she cried, "that I would trust the planting of an innocent little bulb to a man whose knowledge of botany is at once academic and wrong? Never!"

She had taken off her cuffs and pulled up her sleeves to her elbows, and as Jack watched he had a chance to see how lithe and shapely were her wrists and hands. He could also see how naturally the sunlight glinted through her brown hair, and when she looked up at him with laughing eyes, after patting the soil into place over the bulb, he could see that they were of an unfathomable blue.

"You have done the planting," he exclaimed. "Now I should be permitted to do the watering."

"But a plant like this should be watered every evening," she protested.

"Or oftener," he pursued blandly.

"Oh, I couldn't think of letting a foolish little bet like this interfere with your business."

"You couldn't? Why, I propose to make the watering of this plant my chiefest business, and I shall not let anything else interfere with it."

"But you are a lawyer, I understand. What will your clients say?"

"To be a lawyer you must first catch your client," he commented whimsically and then added with well affected earnestness: "By the way, you haven't any troubles that I could straighten out for you, have you? I mean trouble of a legal nature."

"I have no troubles of any kind," she replied laughingly.

"Lucky girl, though it is unlucky for me. I don't know but I shall feel it my duty to make trouble of some kind for you."

"If you try you will perhaps find that I can make trouble too."

"I don't doubt it," he said banteringly and heaved a deep sigh. "When it comes to really making trouble commend me to good looking girls of eighteen or thereabout, especially in the springtime."

"Oh, you needn't be alarmed," she pouted.

"And I was just beginning to hope that I might be. Well, well, if you do have trouble of any kind that develops a legal aspect that does not require too profound a knowledge of the law, but at the same time demands lengthy consultations, I hope you will not forget me. My office hours are from 10 to 5, except when I am yachting, golfing or playing tennis."

"Do you do much yachting?"

"I usually spend Friday and Saturday of each week on board and take a couple of long cruises each season."

"Do you golf much?" she persisted, with growing mischief in her eyes.

"I make it a rule to play eighteen holes each Monday and Wednesday. It really takes a great deal of practice to keep oneself in form at golf," he explained unblushingly.

"And tennis?"

"Well, I am able to devote only my Tuesdays and Thursdays to that fascinating game. We really have ripping courts, and I hope you will become a member of our little club."

She laughed joyously, without answering his suggestion.

"With the amount of time you devote to golf, tennis and yachting I am afraid you would not have much time to devote to any troubles I might bring to you."

"I sincerely hope you may never have any more troubles than I can attend to, even in the small amount of time that I devote to law." This was said so meaningfully that she blushed faintly. But just at that point his mother concluded her call on Betty's mother, and he had to go along as her escort.

There never was a flower more carefully tended than that little waif. As Betty Curtis had come to the town with her mother to spend the summer in the fine residence her father had bought for them she had nothing to do but enjoy herself. Jack Etheridge was almost equally blessed with leisure, for, though, in compliance with the wishes of his widowed mother, he had commenced the practice of law so that he would know better how to care for his wealth when she left him her fortune, in addition to the handsome income he derived from the estate of his father, he did not elect to live a strenuous life. After careful investigation he decided to hang out his shingle in this pleasant little town that had excellent golf links at the rear and a luxurious yacht club on the water front. He opened offices with a southern exposure in the post-office building and fitted them up with furniture admirably suited for lounging on and waited comfortably for his first client. In order to pass the time as pleasantly as possible he supplemented his library of law books with all the latest novels and current magazines. His mother was satisfied, and it cannot be said that he felt life to be unduly exacting. He conscientiously kept regular office hours, as explained above, so it naturally happened that he frequently walked home from the links with Betty after a pleasant game, and the first thing they always did was to take a look at the little mound that covered their bulb. Donald had been warned to leave it alone, and they saw to it that no weed sprouted in its vicinity.

"I am inclined to think," said Betty a couple of weeks after the planting, "that a watched bulb is somewhat like a watched pot."

"Perhaps the hyacinthine Donald threw it away because he saw that it was dead."

"Oh, I noticed that it was quite fresh when I planted it, but I think it is mean of you to use the word hyacinthine when you know well enough that there is no common adjective derived from crocuses. I shall have revenge, however, when it sprouts."

One fine evening about the middle of May when they went to their favorite spot in the garden they found that their bulb had pushed through the ground. But it had not come far enough for them to decide which was right.

Next evening Jack came again, for matters were getting exciting. By this time the tender green leaves had begun to open, and it was clear that the plant was not a crocus. The leaves were thick and broad.

"I knew I was right," Jack exclaimed excitedly. "It is certainly not a crocus, therefore it must be a hyacinth. I prefer ties that are quiet in color and pattern."

"Not so fast," said Betty. "The idea of a lawyer using such logic. I admit it is not a crocus, but I see no reason to believe that it is a hyacinth. It is not necessarily a hyacinth because it is not a crocus. There are thousands of other things that it may be. You a lawyer and to make such a claim. Fie!"

"Oh, that is all right! A lawyer always claims everything in sight. I suppose we will have to ask Donald to settle the matter for us."

"We shall do nothing of the kind. Let us wait until it flowers, and then I'll undertake to eat it in addition to paying my wager if you prove to be right, though I may be tempted to transplant something more edible in its place if it should really turn out to be a hyacinth."

"A leaf, for instance. It grows from a bulb and is edible."

Shakespeare has said that "for lovers lacking matter the cleanliest shift is to kiss," but Betty and Jack had not confessed to themselves that they were lovers, and whenever they lacked matter they could fall back on the bulb. It furnished them with unfailing matter for chat and banter when other conversation failed, and in a subtle way all their thoughts of one another were intertwined with it.

When Jack went away on the annual yachting cruise of the club Betty found a peculiar pleasure in tending to the mysterious little plant that was strangely familiar, although she could not remember ever having seen one in a garden. While watering it and removing every weed that dared to appear it brought back to her many pleasant memories, and she had a sense of companionship while watching it. And when it finally put forth the blossom that betrayed its identity she blushed and laughed and blushed again when she wondered what Jack would say when he saw it.

Yachting is a most leisurely pastime and gives one ample opportunities for thought. Before the cruise was over Jack had made for himself an unaccountable reputation for silence and unsociability. Those who observed him noted that he frequently smiled to himself and shook their heads ominously. Toward the end of the cruise it was seen that his face had taken on the seriousness of a great resolution, and it was evident that his mind had been made up finally on some matter of the gravest importance.

When Betty saw him coming up the garden path after his return she was smitten with sudden confusion, but she managed to greet him with proper dignity. After the usual exchange of compliments and a few inquiries on her part regarding the cruise the conversation became monosyllabic. As usual on such occasions she reverted to the bulb to start it again.

"I have taken good care of our bulb since you left. It has blossomed at last."

"I have also watched the growth of something you planted, and it has also blossomed," he said like one who had carefully rehearsed a part.

"That I planted? I don't understand. And she looked at him with wide eyed wonder. She observed, however, that he looked very athletic and that a tanned complexion became him.

"Yes, I have watched what you planted, and it has blossomed into love. I have come to ask if you will care for that flower in my heart forever."

Being of a poetic temperament, how could she refuse a proposal so poetic? When the matter was settled, with pretty formalities too sacred for the eyes of outsiders, she looked up at him and exclaimed:

"Wouldn't you like to see the other plant? It turns out to have been very significant."

"It doesn't bear orange blossoms, does it?"

"Not exactly, but it bears something almost as appropriate."

"Well, it will be the favorite plant in our garden some day. In fact, I think I'll have a whole garden full of it."

"I have found how it got here," she explained as they passed through the garden. "One of Donald's children brought it home from the woods and put it among the bulbs. He recognized it and threw it away."

When Jack saw the plant he laughed loudly, and their laughter mingled into music. On the little mound where Betty had planted the bulb there bloomed as fine a Jack-in-the-pulpit as any one would wish to see.

"It looks just as if it were ready to perform the marriage service and give us its blessing," said Jack as he knelt to remove a little weed that showed its head near by.

Betty very appropriately knelt beside him.

The Owner and the Visitor.

His house, the first he had ever owned, being nearly finished, the Phoebe man went forth one fine afternoon to inspect it. As he entered the front door he observed a well dressed man standing within, apparently admiring the beauties of construction and decoration. In an instant the pride of the owner swelled within him. Here was where he would make the visitor verdant with envy and, incidentally, intercept a few bouquets for himself. Stepping up to the stranger, he remarked:

"It's a beautiful house, isn't it? It's worth every cent of the investment and a great deal more."

"You are right," replied the stranger.

"You are, I suppose?"

"Yes, I'm the owner," interrupted the other, "and just let me tell you that there are not many men round here who own as fine a house as this."

"I quite believe you," serenely answered the visitor. "I'm the man, you see, who holds the first mortgage on it."—Brooklyn Eagle.

The First Woman Whip.

Who was the first "femme cochiere?" To the Princess de Metternich, a lady of quality in the fullest meaning of the word, who flourished under the second empire, this honor must be accorded, says the London Chronicle. For in the days when the woman whip was a very rare spectacle indeed this dauntless dame was frequently to be seen driving her phaeton through Paris. One day two facetious youths took it into their heads to signal to her. "Pst, cochiere!" The princess entered into the spirit of the joke. She drew up. "By the hour," said the two, seating themselves. "Where?" "Bois de Boulogne." She whipped up without another word and drove off to the Bois. After a silent tour of something over an hour the merry twain began to tire and asked to be put down. "Very good, citizens," said the "cochiere," depositing them and holding out her hand. "My fare is 300 francs per hour for my poor." In the event the laugh proved to be on her side.

Rickshaws and Dandies.

In the mountain districts of India the principal vehicles of passenger conveyance are the rickshaw and the dandy, with which Rudyard Kipling has made us familiar. The rickshaw is pushed and pulled through the streets and on the roads leading out into the country by four coolies, and the dandy is carried on the shoulders of four and sometimes six coolies. Saddle ponies are also used to some extent, but most of the inhabitants and quite all visitors use the rickshaw and dandy. The latter is constructed on the plan of a sleigh box, but longer. A pole is attached fore and aft, which is long enough to give a springy motion when the coolies are walking and trotting. A crosspiece rests on the shoulders of the coolies and is shifted now and then from one shoulder to the other for rest. By the command of the coolie in charge this shift is made simultaneously.

Castle Garden.

Castle Garden was built by the United States in 1807 from the plans of Lieutenant Colonel Jonathan Williams, C. E., and was called Fort Clinton. In 1822 it was ceded to New York city. In 1824 it became a place of amusement and about 1826 got the name of Castle Garden. In 1845 there were Ethiopian minstrels there, in 1847-49 theatrical companies played there, and in 1850 Jenny Lind sang there. In 1855 it was closed as a place of amusement, and the commissioners of immigration took it as an immigrant depot. In 1870 it suffered from fire, and on July 9, 1876, it was burned to the ground. It was rebuilt at once. In 1892 the depot was moved to Ellis Island, and Castle Garden reverted to the city, which in 1896 opened an aquarium there.

A Well Meant Suggestion.

At an "at home" given by a Yorkshire gentleman's wife an outside manservant had to do duty for a butler. The man was astonished at the thin slices of bread and butter with which he served his mistress' guests. As he was serving an ancient dowager for the fourth time he said to her in a voice that was meant for a whisper, but which was audible to the whole room, "If yer slaps three or four slices together, mum, maybe yer can get a bite."—London Telegraph.

A Lesson In Ornithology.

A gentleman who rather overvalued himself, looking at a case of birds, said to an ornithologist who was with him, "What is that bird?" "That," said the other, "is a magpie." "It's not my idea of a magpie," was the rejoinder. "Perhaps not," replied his friend, "but it's God's idea of a magpie."—House Beautiful.

Quickly Supplied.

There have been many strange things in English history. One of the most curious was recently mentioned by a little schoolgirl. "The hydra," said this much informed young person, "was married to Henry the Eighth. When he cut her head off, another one sprang right up."

She Could See For Herself.

Mrs. Citily—Bridget, who was that at the door just now? Bridget—A leddy wantin' t' know if we had furnished rooms. Mrs. Citily—What did you tell her? Bridget—Sure, an' I told her that all our rooms were furnished. She's lookin' at the libry now.—Puck.

Lack of Confidence.

Visitor—Do they treat you well here? Prisoner—Generally they does, only they hurts me feelin's by their lack of confidence. They won't let me have a titchin'.

Colonel B. M. Moulten, former commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Ohio, died Tuesday at Lima, O., aged 62.

Stoner Restocked With Fine Bass

Six thousand black bass and one thousand channel cat fish have been added to the waters of Stoner Creek. This beautiful stream of water, which flows through the city of Paris and at many places above the dam of the Paris Milling Company, is from ten to twenty feet deep and has already the reputation of being one of the best streams in the State for fishermen.

The organization of the Bourbon Fishing Club last spring has created renewed interest in the sport, with the result that President George M. Hill has been actively at work to replenish the stream with a liberal supply of black bass, the gamest of all fishes. Mr. Hill's efforts were rewarded Wednesday when the official car of the department of pisciculture arrived in this city. In addition to the several thousand fish supplied for Stoner Creek some twenty-five large fishponds of the county were supplied with fish of the black bass, channel cat and new-light varieties by their owners. The fish supplied to Stoner Creek were distributed at a point beginning at Easton Ford Bridge and as far as Kennedy's Creek, several miles above the city.

Melons On Ice.

Watermelons, red, juicy and as sweet as honey on ice at all times. J. E. CRAVEN.

Taken Back To Michigan.

In Michigan a man may not desert his family with impunity, as in that State, it is a felony for which Jas. Hatfield, of Winchester, may serve a term in the penitentiary. A few days ago John Duhr, a detective from Detroit, went to the above city with the proper papers from Gov. Beckham, of this State, and the Governor of Michigan, looking for Hatfield, who had deserted his family there. Hatfield had gone to Cincinnati, but he returned in a few days and, with assistance from the Sheriff's office and the police, Duhr captured his man and took him back to Detroit.

Attend Harry Simon's Great July Trade Sale, beginning Saturday, July 6th, closing Saturday, July 20th.

Holiday For Elks.

Mayor Reyburn, of Philadelphia, yesterday issued a proclamation to the citizens of Philadelphia, suggesting that next Thursday, the day the Elks hold their annual parade, be observed as a holiday. He further states that all business houses and manufacturing establishments should be closed that day. Preparations for the festivities are steadily going on and the city is taking on holiday appearance.

Will Bridal Cumberland Falls.

The Commercial Club of Somerset, Ky., has opened negotiations with a syndicate in New York which will harness the falls on Cumberland River, with a view to the establishment of a large aluminum plant at that place. The company has notified the Commercial Club that its civil engineer will be there in a short time to look over the proposed site for the plant. The falls on the Cumberland River can furnish untold power, and will be sufficient to operate trolley lines throughout that section and many large manufacturing plants of various kinds are in contemplation. The falls are several miles from Somerset, in the Cumberland River, which skirts Pulaski county, and have a natural drop of some eighty feet, with a gradual incline above the falls of some forty feet more. It is the intention of the syndicate to erect a large dam one mile above the falls and thus make the drop 120 feet.

Pure Ice Cream.

Call Home 'phone 317, if you want pure ice cream delivered to your home in any part of the city. 9-2t MANN'S CONFECTIONERY.

Destructive Storm.

During a heavy wind and rain storm which passed over Greendale, Fayette county, yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock, the new frame dormitory being erected for colored inmates at the State Reform School was blown down. The building was up as far as the second story and the workmen were engaged in its construction only a few minutes before the storm came. They had sought shelter in an adjoining building, however, and no one was hurt.

The storm was of considerable severity in that end of Fayette county and did considerable damage to fruits and growing crops.

Refused Extension of Dates.

After long executive session yesterday the Kentucky Racing Commission announced that they had refused an extension of dates to the Latonia Jockey Club. The commission, it is said, was not a unit on this question, and that Messrs. Clay, Young, and desCognets were opposed to giving any more dates for the Latonia racing, and that Col. Jack Chinn and Colonel Charles F. Grainger took the other side of the argument.

The Japs are not near so warlike in their utterances against the United States. They are foxy and only sparring for time to get ready for a fight.

Hot Time At Cynthiana.

The Cynthiana City Council by a vote of five to four, gave Mayor Ashbrook power to employ additional counsel, both local and from a distance, to assist the Cynthiana City Attorney in defending the city in the injunction proceedings, July 17, restraining the mayor and city officials from removing the tent located on the public square which is being used daily for holding temperance meetings. Authority also was given to bring and prosecute such other actions on behalf of the city as the facts may justify or render necessary.

One hundred children, singing temperance songs, paraded the public square Wednesday morning. In the Harrison County Court Judge King ordered the names of eleven persons stricken from the registration books.

College Committees Meet.

A meeting of committees from Kentucky State College and Kentucky University was held at the Phoenix Hotel, Lexington, at noon yesterday, for the purpose of conferring in regard to the change the present name of State College.

The name "State University, Lexington, Ky." was suggested by the committee from State College, and the Kentucky University committee, not being empowered to act in the meeting, will take the report with the suggestion of a new name for their sister institution to the trustees of Kentucky University for consideration.

The spirit that prevailed at the meeting was rife with good feeling.

Kentucky University openly avowed amity toward the growing institution on South Limestone, and the State College committee expressed an abundance of good cheer toward the successor to the old Transylvania. At the next meeting of the trustees of Kentucky University the matter of the new name which State College proposed to take will be discussed and all present sentiment tends to a belief that the change will be looked on in the most favorable light.

Receiving the sanction of Kentucky University the matter of the new name will then be carried to the State Legislature for legal adoption.

Arriving Daily.

The Estate Of The Late W. W. Massie.

Several days ago D. L. Hardesty, Revenue Agent for State-at-large, through his attorney Dr. R. J. O'Mahony, of Lexington, filed suit in the Bourbon County Court against the estate of the late W. W. Massie for backtaxes. The attorney asked for an order to compel Mrs. Massie, the executrix of the estate, to file an inventory of the personal property of the estate. This order was entered upon the records, and said inventory was filed yesterday in County Clerk Paton's office, with Mr. R. J. Neely and Mr. Chas. Stephens as appraisers. The following is the summary of the report filed:

Live stock, farm implements and household and kitchen furniture, $2,000.
Cash on deposit in bank, $18,569.36.
Notes, $14,142.71.
One hundred shares Agricultural Bank stock, $23,000.
Seventy-five shares Bourl on Bank stock, $13,125.
Thirty shares National Bank of Kentucky, $6,000.
Fifty shares Trust and Safety Vault Company, Lexington, $10,000.
Ten shares First National Bank, Paris, $2,000.
Total amount of personal property, $39,837.07.

Besides the above personalty, Mr. Massie left three fine farms—one containing 358 acres on the North Middletown pike, the old Zimza Stone place; one of 370 acres, the old Sandusky farm at Black's Cross Roads, and one of 606 acres, "New Forrest," the old Horace Miller place on the Maysville pike, near town. This making a total of 1,344 acres of fine Bourbon county land that would easily average $100 per acre or more, with handsome city estate of about $40,000.

It will be seen from the above the aggregate amount of the estate left by Mr. Massie is near $250,000.

Papers on Education.

[George W. Chatman.]

ARTICLE III.

During the Dark Ages the Feudal Lords had usurped the political power of Europe; governmental influences had been gathered into their hands and the people were their slaves. The church also claimed supreme power and exercised almost unlimited influence not only over the consciences and lives of the people, but over the material interests of men as well.

At the beginning of the fifteenth century the feudal system had begun to disintegrate; the church no longer held undisputed sway; new life and the light of hope to down-trodden humanity could be seen in the distance; new discoveries and inventions were made and the people awoke as from a long sleep and great reformations began to be made. The "Divine right of both King and Pope was disputed; the common people became conscious of their own worth and power and rose in their might against the tyranny endured for centuries and with a mighty effort they wrested from the rules and aristocracy the center of governmental power and influence, where it had been held by force ever since man had lived in communities and States and placed this power in the people, who are, and by virtue of inherent right ought to be, supreme. The great principles of Democracy were won and that they may be perpetuated, the people must be prepared to maintain them and use them properly so that humanity may be governed by them and enjoy the freedom and liberty with which these principles are freighted.

This brings us down to modern education and ushers in the wide-spread principles of popular education that must sustain the principles of self-government and Democracy.

This system of education designed for the masses was not struck out all at once. It had been gathering its material ever since civilization began. So unselfish have been its founders that they rejected nothing good even though found in heathen systems. All nations and all peoples have contributed in some way to it. It is the outgrowth of elevated and liberated humanity.

Karl Schmidt says: "The history of the world is the history of the development of the human soul. The manner of its development is the same in the race as in the individual. The individual as a child is not a rational being; he becomes rational. The child is not yet the master over himself; he belongs to his environment; he belongs to his surroundings. The oriental peoples are the child of humanity. Classical antiquity represents the period of youth in the history of the world. Christ is the type of perfected manhood."

From this it would seem that we have passed the period of youth and are approaching manhood, which can not be attained until development of humanity presents. How slowly it comes! What efforts our generation should put forth! What advancements could be made if the world could see more of the spiritual and less of the material! This common mind in all humanity should be clearly discerned and fed and nourished in a natural and intelligent way. Then will the human race progress it should. That this common mind may be developed; that all classes may be taught; that the masses may be lifted from the darkness of ignorance and superstition; that all men and women may be taught and become happy, useful and intelligent citizens who know how to govern themselves, provide and maintain comfortable homes for themselves and families, public schools have been established wherever the Christian religion has shed its beneficent influence.

Most of the European nations have this system of education in some form. Martin Luther exerted a great influence in Germany in favor of universal education. Rousseau, Froebel, Comenius, Pestalozzi, Bacon, Charles Dickens and many others contributed to this system of learning and gave great impetus to the progress of universal enlightenment. But to our own schools. Our American common schools naturally divide themselves into two classes: The Colonial and the National.

The Colonial schools were mostly taught by the ministers; were very similar to the schools in the days of Chrysostom with this difference that the Colonial schools were distinctly divided into castes; those for the rich or gentry and those for the poor or yeomen. But the latter were few in number and inferior in every way. These schools did not reach the masses for many were too poor to patronize even these cheap, inferior schools and hence got no learning at all.

But after the Revolution, when America became a free and independent nation, founded upon purely Democratic principles, having founded a Republican form of government, it soon began to be believed by many and urged by a few that the masses being allowed to vote and thus having a voice in choosing the officers and a hand in governing the nation must be taught in order to intelligently play their important part in the government and control of the new nation.

So to elevate the masses above the low stratum of ignorance and superstitions with little more than the light of conscience, and that perhaps a wrong one for conscience is formed by the teachings we receive, to prepare these common people, who had borne the burden and heat of the battles for independence and whose patriotism had meant so much in the great struggle for freedom, for intelligent and useful citizenship the common schools of America were formed.

As before intimated, they were not struck out from entirely new material, are not entirely a new creature, neither is their purpose entirely new, but they were born of a new government, begotten by consecrated patriots, brought into a new environment, nourished on the sincere milk of freedom, led by the gentle hand of Liberty, given a most holy task to perform the guiding of a free people, ruling and governing themselves with the derisive hand of all Europe pointing the finger of scorn at them and prophesying, "Failure, Failure!" And but for the influence of the very public schools, failure would have long since been our galling portion; but thanks to our strong fortress, we are still safe, and the eye of the nation looks appealingly to the common schools for protection and for the perpetuity of our National existence.

About Something To Ride In.

We would like to have you come to our repository, examine our vehicles carefully and get our prices before going or sending money to some other point for vehicles. We do not agree to sell any vehicle for $25 to $50 less than it is worth, as some firms advertise, nor do we guarantee goods for an unreasonable time. We do, however, guarantee our goods to be exactly as we represent them, to be worth every dollar we ask for them and we are here to fulfill the guarantee that the factories place upon them. We also agree to furnish any grade of vehicle as cheap or cheaper than that same grade will cost anywhere else. We handle such goods as have proven themselves good and if you buy from us you may rest assured you have the full value of your money. Give us a call.

Not a Slip of the Tongue.

It is dangerous to pretend to knowledge one does not possess. A man of little education was once a guest at a dinner, during which a servant stumbled so that a roast tongue fell from the platter he was carrying. It was an embarrassing moment, but the quick witted host saved the day by remarking, "Never mind, gentlemen, it's only a 'lapsus lingua.'" This caused much laughter and applause, and instead of being spoiled the dinner was a great success. The poor, wishing to shine as a wit himself, shortly afterward gave a dinner, to which none of those present at the first dinner were invited. When the guests had been seated a servant entered bearing a beef roast. Just before reaching the table he stumbled and fell. The host, leaping to his feet, astonished the guests by exclaiming, "Never mind, gentlemen, it's only a 'lapsus lingua.'"—Kansas City Times.

Got the Autograph.

At Carlsbad on one occasion Brahms' physician, Dr. Grunberger, asked the composer for his autograph for a young lady admirer, but Brahms scolded him for making a nuisance of himself and refused to give it. Some weeks later, at his departure from Carlsbad, Brahms handed to the doctor an envelope inscribed, "With the cordial thanks of Johannes Brahms." Noticing a broad grin on the doctor's face, he asked: "What makes you look so cheerful? You don't know yet what the envelope contains." "Nor do I care," retorted the doctor. "The envelope is the main thing. Much obliged for the autograph!"

The first bottle gave me great relief and after taking a few more bottles, I was completely cured; so completely that it becomes a pleasure to recommend this great remedy." ## ARTICLE III.

During the Dark Ages the Feudalords had usurped the political power of Europe; governmental influences had been gathered into their hands and the people were their slaves. The church also claimed supreme power and exercised almost unlimited influence not only over the consciences and lives of the people, but over the material interests of men as well.

At the beginning of the fifteenth century the feudal system had begun to disintegrate; the church no longer held undisputed sway; new life and the light of hope to down-trodden humanity could be seen in the distance;
 new discoveries and inventions were made and the people awoke as from a long sleep and great reformatory began to be made. The "Divine right of both King and Pope was disputed; the common people became conscious of their own worth and power and rose in their might against the tyranny endured for centuries and with a mighty effort they wrested from the rules and aristocracy the center of governmental power and influence, where it had been held by force ever since man had lived in communities and States and placed this power in the people, who are, and by virtue of inherent right ought to be, supreme. The great principles of Democracy were won and that they may be perpetuated, the people must be prepared to maintain them and use them properly so that humanity may be governed by them and enjoy the freedom and liberty with which these principles are freighted.

This brings us down to modern education and ushers in the wide-spread principles of popular education that must sustain the principles of self-government and Democracy.

This system of education designed for the masses was not struck out all at once. It had been gathering its material ever since civilization began.
 So unselfish have been its founders that they rejected nothing good even though found in heathen systems. All nations and all peoples have contributed in some way to it. It is the outgrowth of elevated and liberated humanity.

Karl Schmidt says: "The history of the world is the history of the development of the human soul. The manner of its development is the same in the race as in the individual. The individual as a child is not a rational being;
 he becomes rational. The child is not yet the master over himself, but his environment is his master; he belongs not to himself, but to his surroundings.
 The oriental peoples are the child of humanity. Classical antiquity represents the period of youth in the history of the world. Christ is the type of perfected manhood."

From this it would seem that we have passed the period of youth and are approaching manhood, which can not be attained until development of humanity presents. How slowly it comes! What efforts our generation should put forth! What advancements could be made if the world could see more of the spiritual and less of the material! This common mind in all humanity should be clearly discerned and fed and nourished in a natural and intelligent way. Then will the human race progress as it should. That this common mind may be developed; that all classes may be taught; that the masses may be lifted from the darkness of ignorance and superstition; that all men and women may be taught and become happy, useful and intelligent citizens who know how to govern themselves, provide and maintain comfortable homes for themselves and families, public schools have been established wherever the Christian religion has shed its beneficent influence.
 Most of the European nations have this system of education in some form.
 Martin Luther exerted a great influence in Germany in favor of universal education. Rousseau, Froebel, Comenius, Pestalozzi, Bacon, Charles Dickens and many others contributed to this system of learning and gave great impetus to the progress of universal enlightenment. But to our own schools.
 Our American common schools naturally divide themselves into two classes:
 The Colonial and the National.

The Colonial schools were mostly taught by the ministers; were very similar to the schools in the days of Chrysostom with this difference that the Colonial schools were distinctly divided into castes; those for the rich or gentry and those for the poor or yeomanry. But the latter were few in number and inferior in every way.
 These schools did not reach the masses for many were too poor to patronize even these cheap, inferior schools and hence got no learning at all.

But after the Revolution, when America became a free and independent nation, founded upon purely Democratic principles, having founded a Republican form of government, it soon began to be believed by many and urged by a few that the masses being allowed to vote and thus having a voice in choosing the officers and a hand in governing the nation must be taught in order to intelligently play their important part in the government and control of the new nation.

So to elevate the masses above the low stratum of ignorance and superstitions with little more than the light of conscience, and that perhaps a wrong one for conscience is formed by the teachings we receive, to prepare these common people, who had borne the burden and heat of the battles for independence and whose patriotism had meant so much in the great struggle for freedom, for intelligent and useful citizenship the common schools of America were formed.

As before intimated, they were not struck out from entirely new material, are not entirely a new creature, neither is their purpose entirely new, but they were born of a new government, begotten by consecrated patriots, brought into a new environment, nourished on the sincere milk of freedom, led by the gentle hand of Liberty, given a most holy task to perform the guiding of a free people, ruling and governing themselves with the derivative hand of all Europe pointing the finger of scorn
 at them and prophesying "Failure, Failure!" And but for the influence of the very public schools, failure would have long since been our galling portion; but thanks to our strong fortress, we are still safe, and the eye of the nation looks appealingly to the common schools for protection and for the perpetuity of our National existence.

About Something To Ride In.

We would like to have you come to our repository, examine our vehicles carefully and get our prices before going or sending money to some other point for vehicles. We do not agree to sell any vehicle for $25 to $50 less than it is worth, as some firms advertise, nor do we guarantee goods for an unreasonable time. We do, however, guarantee our goods to be exactly as we represent them, to be worth every dollar we ask for them and we are here to fulfill the guarantee that the factories place upon them. We also agree to furnish any grade of vehicle as cheap or cheaper than that same grade will cost anywhere else. We handle such goods as have proven themselves good and if you buy from us you may rest assured you have the full value of your money. Give us a call.

DOWN PANAMA WAY.

By Louise J.
Strong.

Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

Retta in the rose arbor was reaching for a bud above her head when her cousins, Charlie and Alf, came out the side door and stood drawing on their gloves.

"Don't get reckless, old man," Charlie counseled as if continuing a conversation. "Retta means all right. She's a little flighty; that's all."

"That's what I used to think," Alf returned gloomily, "but I'm convinced now that she really shrinks from a marriage with me. I suppose she doesn't love me as she thought she did when we became engaged."

Charlie shook his head. "Oh, no, Alf, you're mistaken. She's wrapped up in you."

"Looks like it," Alf laughed sarcastically. "This is the third time she's backed out, declaring she was not ready when the day loomed close. I haven't wanted to hurry her. I know a girl gives up a good deal when she marries. But a fellow with nobody and never a home to remember naturally thinks considerably of having a home of his own, especially with a little wife that's just"—He broke off for an instant, then went on: "I'm able to provide for her in the style she is accustomed to or I would not have asked her to marry me. And if we are ever to be married there's no use in waiting longer. If she's found that she cares for some!"

"I AM GLAD TO MEET YOU."

"None of that, Alf!" Charlie interrupted. "Retta flirts a little, but that's all. Have you told her how seriously you regard the postponement?"

"No, and I'm not going to either," Alf declared sulkily.

"Some one should. She"—"Some one shouldn't and shan't!" Alf said fiercely. "No girl is going to be coerced into marrying me. I suppose if I howled around and raised a great racket she would give in, but we'll never be married until she's perfectly willing without outside pressure. I'll get out of the way for awhile and let her have a chance to find herself; won't even write to her. I've influenced her too much, maybe."

Charlie still shook his head, but offered no further remonstrance, merely asking, "In what direction are you going to perambulate and when?"

"Oh, down Panama way and as soon as I can fix my business to leave it, and that won't take many days."

Charlie whistled. "Not going in for an engineering job in that sickly hole, I hope."

"I may find a job when I get there, but I'm going foot loose. I've always been interested in the big ditch scheme. It'll be a diversion to examine it at close range."

"And Retta?"—Charlie began.

"I'll tell Retta and leave her free to find herself, as I said. And I don't want any one to interfere—to say one word to influence!"

They passed around the corner of the house on the way to the gate, and Retta sank limply upon a bench. She had been too startled to move at first and then perceived the impossibility of revealing her presence. It was enveloping, but she was not thinking of that or of the errand to Aunt Anna that had brought her across lots through the rose arbor. The "finding" of herself had come with a suddenness that shook her breathless as she listened. She had not realized before how much her happiness depended upon Alf and Alf's faithful love or how very dearly she loved him.

"Poor fellow!" she sighed tenderly, wiping her eyes. "Poor fellow—how selfish I've been when I knew he never had a home and how he is looking forward to one of his own! He's such a home body, and I've been cheating him—keeping him in lodgings when he hates it so—and when I want—yes, I do—only I'm such a flyaway! I do want to make the dear boy a home. And he's going off to—Where is Panama way? A sickly hole, Charlie called it. Oh, he mustn't! He mustn't!"

She fled home, into the library, and began a search for information concerning Panama way, a search that was somewhat hindered by her linking the two words. But by the aid of the encyclopedia, the physical geography and magazine articles she soon acquired more knowledge of the country than her erstwhile boarding school teacher would have deemed possible. For Retta's strong point was not learning. She was just a sweet little girl, womanly and tender, with a careless shrinking from responsibility, engendered by her entire freedom from such. But now her heart was aroused, and she was aghast with horror at the idea of Alf, her own Alf, going down Panama way to endure all sorts of torments and dangers and finally die of the dreadful fevers! He should not! He should not! She would prevent it somehow, and it must be done at once, for he would be making arrangements to leave his business, even this minute, perhaps!

She rushed away to consult her mother, but that good lady, being deeply engrossed in some charitable function, was out indefinitely, and Retta, feeling no time could be wasted, determined to act for herself. Perhaps if she had had the advice of an older head she would have been less precipitate and irrevocable in her actions.

"I'm mowing a clean swath, burning my ships behind me," she commented confusedly, in the middle of a tempestuously busy afternoon in which she did some very unconventional things.

"I suppose it does look curious to them; I suppose the bride to be's mother is usually to the fore and the b. to b. hangs back in blushing confusion, but I can't wait on mamma when Alf's getting ready this very minute for Panama way. I've got to fix it so there's no getting out of it and leave me a rag of—and I don't care much if they do stare—and I guess I'm sure of dear old Alf!"

Yet she was a bit anxious as she waited in a convenient spot for way-laying him as he left his office. If—Alf were bent and determined on Panama way, she would be in a pretty predicament! She whistled around the corner, apparently oblivious of him until she almost collided with him. Then her heart sank at his grave and formal apology. He had been more deeply hurt and offended than he had shown the evening before when she had insisted on a further postponement, but she must—she caught her breath as he said coldly:

"I am glad to meet you. It will save my coming up this evening to tell you—"

"And I'm glad to meet you," she broke in, laughing nervously. "I want to tell you that I've—I've changed my mind, Alf."

"Changed your mind?" he repeated blankly.

"Yes, about—about—it was harder than she had imagined with his cold, unresponsive eyes upon her; what if he should—she quaked, but plunged on—"about our wedding—and we won't postpone it, after all."

He flushed angrily as he replied, "You were not asked to change your mind—nor the arrangements you made last evening."

"You mean that you don't want to—that you won't now," she cried, with wide eyes.

"I mean that you are not to be compelled, influenced. When did you see Charlie?" And between his teeth he muttered savagely, "Just wait till I see him!"

"I haven't seen Charlie to speak to since yesterday morning!" she declared and burst into a bewildering torrent of explanation and tears. "Oh, if you won't, Alf; if you've changed your mind and don't want me now, when I've found out how much I want you—if you won't—I'll have to run away! For, oh, Alf, I went alone and bought the dress—and took it to madame's and was measured—and I've ordered all the invitations—and engaged the caterer—and the flowers, all—just as we planned—because I wanted to show you how much I care." Sobs that she struggled to repress choked her.

"And you haven't seen Charlie—no one has influenced you?" he demanded incredulously.

"No one has said a word to me about it! I—I found out how much I really cared, and I couldn't get ready fast enough, though mamma was away, and I had to do it alone," she panted impetuously.

He melted entirely. "You dear little whirlwind! You have smashed the proprieties!" he breathed softly and proudly. "I wish"—he glanced about furtively; no, it was too public! "Anyway we can have an hour at the store selecting our furniture."

And, tucking her hand under his arm, they wandered away down the "primrose path," the journey down Panama way entirely and forever forgotten.

Strength In Vegetable Growth.
"Strength is not a thing usually attributed to maidenhair fern," remarked a local florist, "and yet if its roots have not sufficient room they will break the strongest flowerpots. Blades of grass will force the curbstones between which they spring out of place. Indeed, the strength of vegetable growth is wonderful. The most striking example is the island of Aldabra, to the northwest of Madagascar. The island is becoming smaller and smaller through the action of the mangroves growing at the foot of the cliffs. The roots break off immense pieces of stone, which fall into the sea. Into the gaps thus formed the waves eat their way. In a few years it is likely that by the combined action of the waters and mangroves the island will disappear."—Philadelphia Record.

A Remedy.

Tramp—Madam, I am suffering from indigestion. Lady—Why, I'm sorry. What can I do to help you? Tramp—Madam, you can cure me instantly by giving me something to digest.—Harper's Weekly.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases. If we would properly investigate them; and in justification of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of published testimonials contributed by grateful patients who have been cured by it of catarrhal pelvic drains, painful periods, irregularities, prolapsus and other disorders caused by weakness, ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other advertised medicines, and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Miscreant Ruins Paving.

Someone ruined the elegant concrete pavement in front of the First Presbyterian church at Maysville Wednesday night, by taking a large hammer and breaking the blocks. The pavement is one hundred feet long and will have to be relaid.

Both Dismissed.

John R. Magoffin, the blind nephew of former Gov. Beriah Magoffin, and James M. Moberly, of Harrodsburg, charged with the killing of Constable James Peel at Lexington last Saturday night, were both dismissed after their examining trial Wednesday afternoon before County Judge Bullock.

Another Centenarian Gone.

"Aunt" Judy Mason, who died near Russellville, was reputed to be 110 years old. As she was 13 years old when Lincoln was born she probably nursed little Abe and also spanked little Jeff Davis a time or two. Centenarians have expansive memories, and some of them will swear they were present when Noah built the ark, says the Maysville Ledger.

Good Return On Crop.

Bert C. Wren, of Montgomery county, has sold to Mr. Vice, of Owingsville, his 1906 crop of tobacco, about 20,000 pounds, at 13 cents straight. The crop was a fancy one and was grown on ten acres of ground. Mr. Vice purchased two other crops at 10 and 11 cents.

Poor Hungry Boys.

Fifteen members of Company B, Third Kentucky, on their way to Jamestown, are reported to have left the train at Lebanon Junction and returned home because they were not given food or drink.

YOU ARE NEXT AT "BUCKS."

When in need of a first class shave call at Buck's place and you will be given first-class service. You can always catch a turn. Three polite barbers to wait on you. Buck's new bath room is complete, nice porcelain tubs, hot water at all times and polite attendants to take care of your wants.
